BEELL THE WINNER.

Mays No Match for the Marshfield Boy.

The wrestling match on Tuesday evening between Harry Mays of Hamilton, Ontario, and Fred Beell of Marshfield, resulted in a victory for the Marshfield boy, who won three out of five hotly contested rounds. Mays won the first fall, Beell the second, Mays the third, and Beell the fourth and fifth.

Both men appeared on the mat apparently in the best of condition, and while the Canadian was considerably taller than his antagonist, the Marshfield man made up in width what he lacked in length. Mays has a good chest development and a fine pair of shoulders, but his muscular development did not seem to compare with Beell's.

The men started in rather cautiously, and it was some time before either got any advantage, then there was a mixup and the men came to the mat with Beell on top. Some of the audience seemed to imagine that it was all off at once and that Beell was going to put his man down without further effort, but this was found to be a mistake. Beell tried several holds, but the Canadian was lithe and slippery and he managed to wiggle out of several tight places that looked like cinch holds, and during a mixup managed to get on top. Mays tried several full nelsons on Beell but the Marshfield boy got out of them and after a scuffle got on top of the lengthy Canadian again. Then there was some good wrestling, with Beell on the aggressive, but it ended up with Mays on top. His favorite hold seemed to be the full nelson, and at last he secured one on the Marshfield boy that seemed to stick, and he gradually put his shoulders to the mat. Time of fall 18 minutes and 40 seconds.

When the men appeared for the second bout they were apparently as fresh as ever. Mays was a trifle red from his exertions, but the wind of both was good. In this round Beell seemed to be the aggressor most of the time, altho it was no snap, and Mays got on top of the heap several times, but apparently could do nothing with his stocky antagonist. Beell got several half nelsons and bar holds, and several times it looked as if it was all up with the Canadian, but he possessed a faculty of slipping out of tight places, and it was 21 minutes and 45 seconds before Beell got his man in a position that he could not squirm out of, and succeeded in putting his shoulders on the mat.

The men came up for the third bout as fresh as ever. They met each other on the center of the mat and had hardly got hold of each other when the long legged Canadian slid down over his opponent and grabbing him beneath the arms rolled him to the mat and pinned him there. The fall was gained in such short time that there were several who had been outside to see a friend that had hardly had time to get the foam wiped off their moustaches before it was all over. Mays won this fall in just one minute and 10 seconds. Mays admirers now began to think that their man was strictly in it, and there was thunderous applause when the Canadian succeeded in flopping his man so quickly.

At the beginning of the fourth bout both men were apparently in good shape, and neither was suffering any either from fatigue or lack of wind. It was apparent from the start, however, that Beell meant business, and did not let his adversary gain any advantage over him at any stage of the game. Beell was on the aggressive most of the time, and he got several good holds on the Canadian, and each time it looked as if it might be all up with him, but he was a stayer, and wiggled out in some way or another. It had to come, however, and in 8 minutes and 30 seconds Beell had his man pinned to the mat with both shoulders touching. At the end of this fall it was apparent that Beell was the better man of the two, tho Mays admirers did not give up hope, and they still thought that their man might win out.

When the men appeared for the fifth and final fall Mays looked just a trifle tired, tho not enough so to weaken him any. Beell was on the aggressive in this bout, and there was never a time when Mays stood a ghost of a show of winning it. He managed to defeat himself for a time, and staved off the final fall for several minutes, but there was no question but that it was coming, as Beell was right after his man every minute of the time, and Mays escaped one hold only to find himself tangled up in another. After a valiant struggle the fall and match was won by Beell in 15 minutes and 15 seconds, thus adding another victory to the credit of the Marshfield boy.

Before the match between Beell and Mays there was a preliminary bout between Fraser Welch of this city and Ben Burroughs of Port Edwards. This was best two out of three, and was won by Welch. He was much heavier than his opponent, however, weighing something over two hundred, while Burroughs tipped the scales at 167 and is a boy not yet 16 years old. This match was watched with great interest, and the boys showed considerable staying qualities. About 350 people witnessed the match, and the audience was an enthusiastic one from start to finish.

BURGLARY AT NEKOOSA.

Safe Blown Open at Brazeau Bros. Store.

The safe in the store of the Brazeau Mercantile Co. at Nekoosa was blown open last night and cash to the extent of $93 was extracted. The perpetrators are unknown at the present time, but an effort will be made to land them behind the bars.

A hole was drilled in the safe and it is supposed that a quantity of nitro glycerine inserted and touched off, which blew the door open and allowed the burglars to gain access to the contents. Those who looked over the ground expressed the opinion that the work was done by experts, as they went about the business as if they knew how, and there was apparently no hitch in the proceedings.

Besides the cash the burglars took a number of papers from the safe, but it was evident that they took time to examine these, and finding that they were no use to them, threw them away, and they were subsequently found in the wood yard of the mill there.

Mr. Brazeau reports that several trunks were seen hanging about the village on Tuesday, and it is surmised that these were the men who did the burglarizing, and that they were probably dressed as tramps merely to be about town without attracting any more attention than possible.

The company was lucky in the fact that there was no more money in the till, as there are times when the loss might have been more severe.

New Business Block.

Last week John E. Daly bought the Wiperman corner on the east side, consideration $4,000.

It transpired later, however, the property had been purchased by Mr. Daly for the proprietors of the First National bank, who, it is understood, will during the coming summer erect a fine three story building on the premises which will be used as a bank and for other store and office purposes. The site is an ideal one for an institution of this sort, and our citizens will be glad to know that it is the intention to put a nice building on this corner.

"Uncle Josh."

The press of the different cities where the attraction has been speak in the highest praise of it, and say it is a worthy successor to the Old Homestead. A lot of special scenery is used and the celebrated saw mill scene is given which is pronounced the most realistic piece of stagecraft ever presented. Other features are many new and novel specialties and a solo operatic orchestra of ten people.

FRANK A. CADY DEAD

Jumps From Third Story of Hospital During Sick Delirium at Hot Springs and is Instantly Killed.

As we go to press we learn of the sudden and tragic death of Assemblyman Frank A. Cady of this city, which occurred at Hot Springs, Arkansas, today about noon. Details of the affair are meager at this time, but the story of his death as telegraphed by Adam Paulus of Marshfield, who was at the Springs with Mr. Cady, is to the effect that Mr. Cady during delirium got up from his bed and rushing from his room in the hospital, climbed over the railing and fell to the floor, three stories below, killing him instantly.

It seems that Mr. Cady had been critically ill for some time, tho even his intimate friends here knew nothing of the matter, and during his illness has been in the hospital there. The news of his sudden and untimely death will come as a great shock to Mr. Cady's numerous friends in this county, few of whom knew that he was suffering from any illness of consequence.

The body will be brought back for burial, but whether it will be interred here or not cannot be stated at this time.

DEFEATED AT MARSHFIELD.

Both the Boys and Girls Find a Hard Proposition.

Both the boys and girls who went to Marshfield on Friday were defeated that evening by the teams in that city, the girls by a score of 4 to 9 and the boys 33 to 22.

Both games were interesting from start to finish and there was no time when the audience was not displaying the utmost interest in the games. The girls played their game first, and while they held their opponents very well, it was evident that they were playing a trifle timidly, apparently being conscious of the fact that they were in a strange land, and not exactly relishing the situation. The Marshfield girls, however, played a very speedy game, and were right after their opponents at every turn. The consequence was that they out played the Grand Rapids girls in team work, at which our girls had heretofore shown considerable science. The first half ended with the score standing 7 to 4. In the second half our girls failed to score at all while the Marshfield team made two points, thus leaving the score standing 9 to 4. The Grand Rapids girls played much better the second half that they did the first, and it was evident that they had not been doing their best at the start in.

The boys then came on for their turn, and it was a surprise to the Grand Rapids people to see the kind of a game they put up all the way thru. It was expected that the boys would be beaten from the start, but such vigor that there was nothing sure about the outcome at any time, even tho the Marshfield team took the lead at the start and held it to the end. There was very little difference between the two teams in the skill they apparently possessed, but the Marshfield boys were a little heavier all around and won out.

At the end of the first half the score stood 17 to 10. Both teams had been playing hard and very few fouls were called, the one or two of the Marshfield team showed a tendency to play dirty at times. The second half was even more spirited than the first, each side making the utmost endeavors to win out. The Grand Rapids team could not do the business, however, and at the end of the second half the score was 33 to 22.

There was a large crowd in the armory, the gallery being packed, beside those that occupied seats all about the floor down stairs. They were very enthusiastic and most of the time there was so much noise that the referee could not hear his own whistle. The floor in the armory is quite smooth and is kept waxed for dancing, and this proved quite a revelation to the home teams, as they had not experienced anything of this kind before.

After the game the young people and their friends went to Deming's hall, where dancing was indulged in for several hours.

There were about forty from this city at Marshfield that evening, part of the visitors going up on the noon train and the remainder at night.

The basket ball teams report that they were entertained in fine style, and enjoyed their trip very much.

LOOKS LIKE BUSINESS.

Effort Being Made to Secure Brewery Stock Buyers.

Frank Boyanowsky of Antigo has been in the city several days during the past week looking up the matter of locating a brewery at this point.

The proposition is to locate a plant here that will cost in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars. Mr. Boyanowsky will take ten thousand dollars of the stock, and hopes to induce the citizens of Grand Rapids to take up the remainder.

Jacob Lutz has been interesting himself in the matter, and during the past few days has been interviewing some of our business men to see how they felt on the matter, and to see what amount of stock they would take in the concern. Mr. Lutz will take quite a block of the stock himself, but says that he would want to see enough of the stock subscribed for so that the plant could be built without being in debt. This, of course, would be the best way, and it would mean more of a success for the institution after it was put in operation.

There is no question in the minds of those who understand the situation that a brewery would be a paying institution in this city. It is probable that the community is not any more addicted to the use of booze than other places, but it is a fact, just the same, that a large amount of money is shipped out of the place every year for beer, of which a certain amount would be kept here were the stuff manufactured right in the city. As long as the beer is to be used anyway, the money for it might as well remain here at home and be distributed to a certain extent among our local tradesmen.

E. O. K. Club Entertained.

The members of the E. O. K. club were entertained last Thursday evening at the home of Guy Wood. The evening was spent in dancing to the music of the Big Four. Those present report that they were most royally entertained, and that they never spent a more enjoyable evening. Refreshments were served during the evening, which added another item to the pleasure of the event.

Off the Track.

Young people, read the following from the St. Paul Daily News, and reflect. You may find that you are traveling too fast. If so, this timely warning should enable you to bring yourself to a realization of what the result will be before it is too late and you are off the track:

"The limited goes 60 miles an hour. In the smoker men joke and play cards and tell risqué stories. The day coaches are crowded and comfortable. The heavy sleepers as they sway to and fro make only a gentle rocking for the people who chat and read and nap. Crash!—Engine and cars and flesh and blood are ground up together in a shapeless, horrid mass.

Off the track!

So goes humanity's train. Here is a boy who got to running on a fast schedule. He began by pilfering from his father's till. As he grew older he made faster time. Down grade he goes. And soon comes the crash. Newsboys cry a murder and a suicide. The crowd hails for a moment. His friends murmur, 'I never thought he was so bad.' A young man is—

Off the track.

A young girl thinks her mother is too slow for these record-breaking times. Mother is 'old-fashioned.' The girl goes to places her mother has warned her she should not frequent, bloom is brushed from the fruit. Brutal appetites lust after it. * * * One day a heazen, drunken creature, cursing and shrieking, is loaded into the patrol wagon. A woman is—

Off the track.

A man gets in a hurry to be rich. His father went slowly, carefully, successfully. But father's methods will not do. What's the use of moiling and toiling when a quicker way may well do the business? So and so has speculated successfully. Surely I am as shrewd as he. * * *

Off the track.

A pistol shot. A man is—

Off the track.

Why did the train go off the track? It may be the rails were too light. Or the curves too sharp. Or the equipment poor. Slower locomotion might have prevented accidents. Sixty miles an hour was too fast. But—the rival line is scheduled at that. Our train must get in on time. Open the throttle. Shovel the coal. What matters if we do go—

Off the track.

Our age is a rapid one. Business and society go at a 60-mile clip. Rather than be sidetracked for a time men will drive their trains into the ditch. Many of them run wild. There are frequent collisions and wrecks innumerable by getting—

Off the track.

Look out, thriving but venturesome merchant and reckless young woman or gay young man. The race is not to the swift alone. Slow up. Or before you know it you will be—

Off the track.

A Washington correspondent says: They are having much sport at the department of state over an inelastic provision of law which requires that department to compile and issue in a separate volume the statutes enacted at each session of congress. The special session last November enacted only one measure, a joint resolution providing for the payment of mileage to the members. This is bound up, however, in a dignified little volume by itself with as much elaboration as if it were a collection of budget bills and general legislation. That simply is a straw that shows what the republican administration will do when it makes up its mind to get on any old subject. It calls an extra session of the congress and has it in session a month without a single result. Not one thing of benefit to the people and at a cost of over two hundred thousand dollars. That is the way the republicans look out for the interests of the people.

There are troublous times for Dowie over in Australia. Nearly every morning he attempts to hold is broken up by the citizens of the place starting a rough house, and they generally keep up the jambourie until the prophet is glad to make his escape from the place with his skin whole. The old saying about a sucker being born every minute may be applicable to America, but it does not seem to hold good over in Australia.

Governor La Follette's friends are pushing his name hard for a third nomination. It is the same old cry. He hasn't done anything in the past, but if he is elected to office a third term he will show the people a thing or two. If La Follette does anything in the future it will probably be something for his own benefit, the same as it has been in the past.

THE COTTON BOLL WEEVIL

Little Beetle Which Has Closed Mills All Over the World.

The famine in cotton which has closed so many mills both in this country and abroad is due to the ravages of the Mexican cotton boll weevil (Anthonomus grandis boh.), a small grayish bug about a quarter of an inch in length and half as broad. Because of its swordlike snout it is called in Mexico the picudo. It lays its eggs in the squares and bolls of the cotton plant. These develop into the larval, or worm, stage and then feed upon the interior substance of the boll. The squares attacked usually drop off, but most of the bolls remain on the plant and are stunted. Late in the season they either shrivel up or rot. A field of cotton infested by the boll weevil shows few or no blooms upon the plant. A field in full bloom, if attacked, is rapidly denuded of its bloom.

The bug originated in Mexico and has been known for many years in the state of Coahuila. About 1900 it became so bad that cotton growing was abandoned.

By 1902 all the cotton lands in Mexico had been invaded, and the cotton growers of Texas were fighting the advance guard of an attack on the cotton fields of the southern states. In 1904 the attention of the department of entomology was called to the boll weevil by its serious ravages of the Texas cotton fields, and it was then evident that a dangerous enemy of the cotton planter had appeared. The department, appreciating the seriousness of the invasion, recommended that a belt along the Rio Grande be established in which the cultivation of cotton should be prohibited and the advance of the weevil thus cut off. This recommendation was not heeded by the Texas authorities, and the insect continued to enlarge its area of devastation. In 1901 it had spread over one-half the cotton producing area of Texas and has continued its regular yearly advance since then.

Its presence in a cotton field reduces the crop at least one-half.

There has as yet been no effective method of combating it discovered. Congress has been urged to appropriate a large sum to be used in finding some means of exterminating or checking the pest.

BOLL WEEVIL AND BOLLWORM.

AUTOMATIC SALESGIRL.

Slot Machine Adapted to the Needs of Department Stores.

A sort of nickel-in-the-slot machine for use in department stores has been invented by a British Columbian, who professes to have solved the problem of placing before a purchaser several hundred articles for choice. An obstacle to the use of these machines in the past has been their limited capacity. The machines are arranged in vertical columns, with front closed and shelves, on which the articles for sale are exposed, divided into compartments.

The shelves are mounted on an endless chain, provided with handles, by means of which any article exhibited may be brought into registration with the delivering device. The articles selected by the buyer, wrapped ready for delivery, are in the rear of the device where the exhibition takes place.

The purchaser seizes a handle, brings the compartment into coincidence with the delivery box, manipulates an operating rod then brought into view, puts the proper coin in the slot, and the article is delivered into a traveling conveyor, which automatically delivers it to the cashier, delivering to the buyer at the same time a credit check by which the article bought may be obtained at a central desk. If desired the package may be dropped into a receptacle where the buyer may get it.

The articles may consist of neckties, hose, gloves, etc., and the customer may move the device so that he may see all the colors or designs he wishes to see before buying. The goods in the compartments correspond in all cases with the samples shown. As cost of selling is added to the price of such wares it may be that with this device in use commonly there may be reduction in cost to the public.

The Carborundum Industry.

The development of the carborundum industry led to the manufacture of artificial graphite, which is now produced by passing the amorphous carbon through the electric furnace and obtaining a pure graphite with merely a fraction of 1 per cent of ash. Even the direct graphitization of anthracite coals has been successfully accomplished, a granular graphite being obtained which can be extensively used for lubricating purposes. The annual output is more than 2,000,000 pounds.

SILENT FAMOUS MEN

CELEBRITIES THAT HAVE BEEN NOTED AS MISERS OF WORDS.

Some of the World's Greatest Characters Have Been as Sparing of Language as They Have Been Prodigious of Deeds of Renown.

It is a curious and interesting fact that many of the world's greatest men have been as sparing of words as they have been prodigious of deeds.

It is doubtful if there ever lived a more taciturn man than Wallenstein, the famous commander of the Austrian army during the thirty years' war. It is said of Wallenstein that he "lived in an atmosphere of silence" and never uttered a word that was not absolutely necessary, nor would he permit others to speak in his presence more than was essential. One of his chamberlains with needless noise. His servants were so many mutes, not daring to open their lips in his presence, and he was surrounded by patrols, and the approaches to his house were barricaded by chains to preserve him from the least disturbance. In comparison with Wallenstein, it has been recorded, Diogenes would have been a chatterbox and William the Silent a brawler.

But silence is a characteristic of many of the world's most famous soldiers. Napoleon boasted that in his dealings with men he never wasted a word and made monosyllables answer most purposes. But nothing escaped his eyes, and he could compress more within a sentence than most men could convey in a quarter of an hour.

The great Duke of Marlborough when receiving reports from his generals would produce his watch and say, "I will give you a minute." And it was likely to go hard with the officer who did not observe the limitation. To his staff the Duke of Wellington was always more or less a sphinx. A nod or a shake of the head was often the only response they could get from him, and when once he was asked what he considered the best equipment of a commander he answered, "A long head and a silent tongue."

Von Moltke almost rivaled Wallenstein in taciturnity. He never opened his mouth if a gesture would suffice, and when the news was brought to him that the French had declared war he simply said to the aid-de-camp, "Second pigeonhole on the right, first tier," and turned round to sleep again. But he had said all that was necessary, for in the pigeonhole indicated were complete plans for the campaign which closed in brilliant victory. Von Moltke used to say that one verb in the German language was worth all the others put together, and that was "thun"—"to do."

The worst thing his enemies could say of President Grant was, "He won't talk because he has so much to conceal," and yet it was precisely in this silence that Grant's real strength lay. His orders and dispatches were the briefest ever penned, and when once a charming young lady playfully asked him why he would not talk to her he answered, "My dear, don't you know that silence is one of the greatest arts of conversation?"

But it has been the same in all ages. Charlemagne was a perfect miser of words, holding, with Confucius, that "silence is a friend that will never betray." Hannibal was a "man of monosyllables," and Julius Caesar was nicknamed by his soldiers "The Oracle."

Even great statesmen and writers who cannot suffer from any lack of words have often been among the most reserved of men. Of Addison, Johnson says, "Of his external manners nothing is so often mentioned as that timorous or sullen taciturnity which his friends called modesty by too mild a name." According to Chesterfield, he was "the most timorous and awkward man I ever saw," and even Addison himself, speaking of his own deficiency in conversation, used to say, "I can draw bills for a thousand pounds, though I haven't a guinea in my pocket."

Dryden was unutterably droll as a companion. "My conversation is slow," he once wrote, "my humor saturnine and reserved, and I am none of those who endeavor to break jests in company and make repartees." And Shadwell tells how he once dined with Dryden, and from the beginning to the end of the meal the poet "never opened his lips except to eat."

Thomas Carlyle was a "boarder of the gold of silence" and would sit for hours, puffing away at his pipe, without uttering more than a grunt or a grunt monosyllable. Leigh Hunt, his neighbor and intimate, once wrote to a friend: "Have just spent a pleasant hour with Carlyle. When I went in he growled, 'Halloo, here again!' and at parting he snapped out, 'Good day!' and that is the sum of the conversation he honored me with. But how eloquent his silence is! I just sat and looked at him and came away strengthened for fresh struggle."

A Blustering King.

Of King George IV. Thomas Creevey, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, tells this story: The king had appointed the bishop of Winchester to administer to him the sacrament on one of the Sundays about Easter. The bishop was not punctual to his time, and when he arrived the king, in a great passion at having been kept waiting, abused and even swore at him in the most indecent manner, on which the bishop very coolly said he must be permitted to withdraw, as he perceived his majesty was not then in a fit state of mind to receive the sacrament, and should be ready to attend on some future day, when he hoped to find his majesty in a better state of preparation.

A gang of men have been at work the past few days chopping a channel about the ice breaker that stands in the middle of the river as a guard to the center pier of the bridge. Those who had imagined that the ice was about melted from the surface of the river were undeceived when they saw about three feet of solid blue ice where the men were chopping.

—The musical features of the "Uncle Josh Spruceby" company are a splendid orchestra of ten soloists. All the new and popular music is rendered as well as high class numbers. The big band is composed of musicians of merit and the daily concerts given at noon is very popular and attracts large crowds. The company play at the Grand Opera House Tuesday evening, April 5th.

—You don't need a thermometer in the wash tub when you use Galvanic Soap. It will wash clothes in water at any temperature. We recommend however that you use cold or lukewarm water and simply let the clothes soak in the suds. The dirt will be thoroughly loosened and when very soiled parts are simply rubbed between the hands and the clothes rinsed they will be perfectly clean and spotlessly white.

H. W. Lord went to Marshfield on Friday where he intended to take the examination for rural mail carrier. The examiners failed to put in an appearance, however, and as there were several there who had gone to Marshfield on purpose to take the examination, there was a disappointed crowd started for home on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Lord has had a lot of experience in mail matters, and should make a good carrier if he receives an appointment.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Edward Lynch of Grand Rapids, well known in the business and political circles of northern Wisconsin, is at the Plankinton. For many years Mr. Lynch was connected with the schools of his county as superintendent, during the last campaign was the candidate of the democratic party for state senator against Horner Wipperfurth. He is one of the men who in early days had abiding faith in the agricultural possibilities of his section, and has been a large holder of wild or cut over lands.

Martin Boyer, who is located at Kenosha, arrived in the city last week and is visiting his relatives here for a couple of weeks. Mr. Boyer reports that there was about three feet of snow in the woods up in that country, and that most of the traveling is done on snow shoes. He says logging operations were carried on at a lively rate, the consequence being that the Arpin company, for whom he was working, finished their season's logging while the weather was still good for the work, something that does not usually happen in this section of the country.

Charley Natwick of Hansen was in the city on Monday, having just got home from Parkersburg, West Virginia, where he had been visiting his brother James. Charley says that he state of West Virginia appears to a Wisconsin man to be standing up on edge, and that the farmers have to show their pigs in order to keep them from slipping on the side hills and either breaking their necks or else fetching up on their neighbors' land further down the hill. Charley also took in the city of Washington, D. C., where he visited many places of interest.

Deputy M. J. Conway of the Fraternal Reserve Association is meeting with good success in securing a large charter list. Many of our leading business men and citizens are joining the F. R. A. recognizing the stability of its plan of insurance. The F. R. A. is a progressive Fraternal Beneficial organization with headquarters at Oshkosh, Wis. Its promoters are all prominent professional and business men of that city. Most of them being prominently known throughout the state. The success of the local order, starting off with the hustling citizens who are associating themselves with the order, is now assured.

John Ebbe of Grand Rapids, sheriff of Wood county, spent Monday in the city. He brought up God. Spang a prisoner from Marshfield, who about a month ago attacked his divorced wife's home, and shot through the windows several times, then forced an entrance and was climbing the stairs with a gun in one hand and a lamp in the other when he was met by his wife with a revolver. After vainly warning him to leave she fired, inflicting a painful wound that settled his murderous spirit for the time. Now he wants to plead guilty. Owing to a misunderstanding the attorneys in the case were not present and the sheriff had to return to Grand Rapids with his prisoner on the evening train.—Stevens Point Journal.

Important Bulletins for farmers.

The Experiment Station at Madison has recently issued two bulletins of interest to Wisconsin farmers.

Bulletin No. 111, entitled "Oat Smut and its Prevention," puts the loss during the last three years from Oat Smut in this state at $13,000,000. During this period the rural public schools have cost the tax payers of the state $11,500,000. The bulletin gives full directions for treating seed oats to prevent loss from smut in a simple, inexpensive and thorough manner.

Bulletin No. 112 treats of alfalfa in Wisconsin. It tells how to test the seed, how to secure a good stand of alfalfa and how to harvest and care for the crop. Both bulletins are illustrated.

Copies of these bulletins will be sent to residents of Wisconsin, free of charge, upon receipt of postal card giving the address. Non-residents should enclose a two-cent stamp to pay cost of mailing.

Are These People Fools?

Three of five persons today look upon the world through glass.

Do they wear glasses for "style," for "looks," for "fun?"

Are all these people fools?—would they continue to wear them unless deriving great benefit therefrom?

Properly adjusted glasses are today a panacea for many of the so-called chronic diseases which medicines have failed to benefit.

But don't get the idea that glasses CURE anybody of anything. Nature does the curing. Glasses simply stop nerve-leakage, allowing nature to resume her normal way in the performance of natural functions.

Our business is the scientific adjustment of glasses for the improvement of vision and the stoppage of nerve drain and strain.

Death of Mrs. Worthington.

Mrs. B. T. Worthington died at her home in this city on Thursday morning as the result of cancer, after suffering for several months from the disease. Her life was despaired of some time ago, as the attending physicians could do nothing for her, and all that could be done was to make her as comfortable as possible and wait for the inevitable.

Mrs. Worthington was born in Glens Falls, New York, in 1848, and was consequently 56 years of age at the time of her death. She was married in 1866 to B. T. Worthington and came to this city immediately after ward, and has since resided here. One son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Worthington, who died in 1880. Mrs. Worthington was a woman who was loved and respected by all who knew her, and the grief stricken husband has the sympathy of all in his sad affliction.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from the home, Rev. W. A. Peterson of the M. E. church conducting the last sad rites.

Nearly a Fire.

James Mason came near having a fire in his home Saturday morning early. He was awakened by smoke in the room and when he arose to investigate he found that the string room was so thick with smoke that it was impossible to enter. Leaving the trouble as being near the stove he applied a few pails of water when he was able to enter the room. Investigation showed that there had been a hole burned thru the floor, but otherwise but little damage had been done. Mr. Mason was of the opinion that the fire had been caused by cressets dropping from the pipe, which eventually set fire to the carpet.
